Case 1: "NAME" = SHORT-RANGE SPACECRAFT

Note: In ancient times, to possess a vessel capable of carrying passengers rapidly from place to place amounted to holding a NAME. We can draw a parallel with today where whoever does not possess an automobile, a bank card, and a social security number is a nonentity in the eyes of society! To possess a Name (a vessel) in the most ancient antiquity was the mark of senior social rank. [Think of the concept of "titled landowner" or owners of personal jets today.] Only the "gods", kings, and princes directly affiliated with heavenly divinities plus some other privileged humans could possess "Names" on the Earth.

We study the term "name" in Sumerian, Akkadian, Hebrew, and Egyptian.

As you know, numerous Sumerian terms were fabricated by combining several syllables from Emeša (the matrix language). Generally, when two vowels were in sequence, one of them automatically disappeared. You will observe that, thanks to the phonetic values of the Sumerian syllabary, the original sense of the word MU (name) will appear as by enchantment.

TE possesses the same archaic pictographic sign in the form of two rejoining stars, as the particle MUL (star), suggesting a common meaning in a distant epoch.

17 Emesal (Paleo-Babylonian dialect)

Secret dialect of women and priestesses. Part of, but not to be confused with, Emešà. No male could use this dialect with the exception of the Kalû priests, who were eunuchs.

18 This is either a direct translation from the original language specified in column 1, or one inferred with the help of the decomposition.

19 DIGIR/DINGIR

In Mesopotamia as in Egypt divinities (goddesses and gods) were identified as "celestial cows" and "wild or fierce bulls." The fact that DIGIR/DINGIR is associated with "makers of life" leads us to identify at least some of them with Hebrew Elohim. The Sumerian term used in connection with the creation is ŠĀ-ĀB, the matrix of cows, identifying the feminine principle with the creation of the world. The equivalent in Akkadian is ilu, from which comes the biblical el. See ilu above. Also GIR₁₁ (good, skilled); GIR₁₅ (noble, civilized); GIR₄ (kiln); GIR₈ (piece of clay). Numerous civilizations associate the womb with a kiln or oven. In the next book we will see that the "gods" equated clay with a precise element of human genetic material and the human himself. See elohim.
